CHES Welcomes Visiting Professor Dr. Tim Dornan

CHES is delighted to welcome visiting professor, Dr. Tim Dornan, for a month-long visit at the beginning of January 2011. Tim Dornan is Professor of Medical Education at Maastricht University, the Netherlands. He studied medicine and history & philosophy of science at Cambridge and qualified as a doctor from Oxford in 1975. After residency education in Oxford and Nottingham, he obtained a clinical research doctorate from Oxford and spent a post-doctoral year in Seattle, USA. After completing his clinical training in Nottingham, he became a consultant internist and endocrinologist in Manchester. As Undergraduate Dean at Hope Hospital, he helped design and implement Manchester's innovative integrated undergraduate medical curriculum. Since then, he has trained as an educationalist, completing a masters degree in 2002 and a PhD on the topic of clinical workplace learning in 2006, both at Maastricht University, and heading Manchester's medical education research group. His interests include clinical workplace learning and the use of IT to support it, social learning theories, and qualitative research methodology. He is a UK National Teaching Fellow and visiting Professor at Peninsula Medical School.

Small Group Seminar Series with Dr. Tim Dornan

Dr. Dornan will be presenting a small group seminar series during his stay: The four seminars in the series will be a journey of co-discovery of socio-cultural theory. Sessions will focus on: Sociocultural theory, communities of practice/situated learning, activity theory, and implications to research and practice

There will be required pre-reading for each session with a reading list for post-seminar follow-up reading. The seminars will include interactive dialogue to explore the implications of these theories for your research.

A call for registration was sent out in early October, and a few spots are still available. The seminar will be hosted at the Diamond Health Care Centre and videoconferenced to UVic, UNBC, and KGH. To register, please contact Shazeen Hasham at chessecretary@medd.med.ubc.ca. Please note priority is given to those who are attending all sessions, and space is limited.
